UTAH

Social Justice Official Statement

Volunteers of America, Utah joins communities, organizations and individuals across the country and the world in grieving the death of not only George Floyd, but for the many others that have fallen before him due to racial injustice. We strongly condemn racism and bigotry in all its forms.

We deplore the violence and unfairness that has taken the lives of so many people of color.

Volunteers of America, Utah has a lengthy history of commitment to social justice. We are an agency that works to support the most vulnerable people in our community, acknowledging that a significant percentage of our own population is Black, fighting against racial injustice is and must be an integral part of how we think and how we approach our work. We realize and are dedicated to furthering our commitment to strengthen diversity and inclusion and rooting out whatever systemic racism exists.

We refuse to be silent. It is vital that our community knows that we are anti-racist and we don't condone violence. We stand with our brothers and sisters of color and will continue to support you.

Be strong. Be kind. Be safe.
